Client's words:

I recently worked with Karen when I had to present an important business pitch. Karen helped me to get clear on my message – she also taught me various skills on how to present effectively with storytelling and clever ways of engaging my audience.

I felt much more confident and empowered after her online coaching sessions. I will definitely work with Karen again and highly recommend her as speaker coach.

Client's words:

We were looking for someone to help our software engineers (as well as managers and leaders) to flourish through improving their communications and presentation skills. Karen's credentials really stood out to us, and her engagement style made it straight-forward to tailor a package to suit our needs. Engineers, who typically stand back when it comes to a focus on soft skills, were queuing at the door for the opportunity of this professional engagement. And they weren't disappointed.

The feedback received is proving it was time well spent, with this response standing out to me, from an experienced yet quiet manager; "I'd go as far to say it was one of the best sessions I have attended in my career". We are delighted with progress and wouldn't hesitate in recommending for other organisations.
